Social Media, Drug Trends:

Social media has enhanced the way that youth and young adults communicate with each other and the world, but it's also offering new and dangerous opportunities for these young adults to purchase illicit drugs, often with dangerous consequences. The New Drug Dealing Trends topic works to inform community members, parents, caregivers, teachers and any other individuals with youth in their lives how social media applications can be used to access illicit substances. These applications have provided a new ease of access that parents may not be aware of. During this training, discover ways adults can get involved to help their youth avoid social media drug dealers.

Marijuana and Delta 8:

Marijuana continues to be a hot topic in every community in the country, especially as its legalization has progressed over the last 20 years. Coalitions must be up to date on the latest data and information in order to understand and effectively address the plethora of issues surrounding marijuana. This training will also offer participants the opportunity to learn about Delta 8, which is often marketed as "weed light" and is widely available in many states and is growing in popularity with youth.
